Esther Schultdt Becomes Bride of Edgar Werner

A very pretty wedding took place in the Bachelor Grove Lutheran church on Sunday afternoon February 26th at two o'clock when Miss Esther Schultdt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Schultdt of Tinley Park, became the bride of Edgar Werner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Werner of Mokena.

Promptly at the appointed hour, to the strains of Lohengren's wedding march played by Mr. Schmidt, teacher of the Bachelor Grove Lutheran school, the bridal party entered the church taking their positions at the altar where they were met by Rev. Wm. Greve, pastor of the church who read the service.

The bride was charming in a white satin frock and veil and carried a bridal bouquet of roses and sweet peas. Her attendants were Arena Knierim, who was attired in pink georgette and carried an arm bouquet and Mabel Werner, cousin of the groom. She was gowned in green georgette and also carried an arm bouquet.

The groom's attendants were Louis Schultdt, brother of the bride and Albert Schultdt a nephew of the bride. Little Ruth Schultdt acted as flower girl and carried a basket of sweet peas.

Relatives and sponsors were in the guest list. Following the wedding reception was held at the Fred Werner home, a six o'clock dinner being served. The young couple will make their future home with the groom's parents.

Committeeman Fight Hot in New Lenox

New Lenox is worked up to a high pitch over the contest for the office of township committeeman to be fought out at the primary on April 10th between Paul A. Maina and Senator R. J. Barr.

When Mr. Maina filed as a candidate for this office, Wm. Drake, the present committeeman also filed for re-election. Mr. Maina was approached and asked to withdraw his petition which he refused to do. At the eleventh hour Senator Barr's friends in New Lenox township induced him to be a candidate for the same office and his petition was filed on the last day for filing. Since then Drake has withdrawn his petition, thus leaving Maina and Barr to fight it out. Mr. Maina is a popular young man and will undoubtedly give the senator a merry time and race. A host of friends have pledged him their support and he will poll a heavy vote.

Norman Roth Enters Highway Commissioner Race

New Lenox town politics are beginning to get hot. A lively scrap is anticipated for the office of highway commissioner, the aspirants being Ernest Oram for re-election and Norman Roth as his opponent.

Morning Star Mission Active

The following is a report of the Morning Star Mission of Joliet as compiled by Supt. Peter McCarthy: for February 1928.

Conversions 53; free meals 1835; free beds 803; free clothing to 146 persons; free new testaments 38; free gospels 100; police court and jail visits 27; relief to 2 families; paid rail road fare for 11 persons.

Bnn Allen, wife and two children stranded at police station, sent to Baraboo, Wis. Three married couples, 4 youngsters. 3 boys ages 16-14 and 18 years, one runaway girl, Estella Pahys 16 years old given to Supt. McCarthy by police. One deserted mother sent to DeKalb, Ill. An old soldier and wife age 68 years given to Supt. McCarthy by Attorney Samuel King. Here is a bit of "Pete's" philosophy worth remembering:

"Kindness is a language the deaf can hear and the dumb can understand and a Christian is a bank of human kindness and any need the world ever has a call upon a Christian and a friend is one who steps in when the world steps out."

Mokena Association Endorses Candidates

The meeting of the Mokena Development Association Monday evening was well attended and a number of candidates for local and state offices were present from Frankfort and adjoining townships. The Mokena Association includes many members from townships to the north in Cook county and also from New Lenox township.

There was an open discussion by the members with regard to the seeming necessity for "looking over" the various political aspirants for office with a view to a possible selection of those best qualified for the several positions to be filled and those present on Monday night expressed a desire to go on record in an endorsement of candidates for the coming caucuses, primaries and elections.

Resolutions were offered and unanimously adopted: Wm. Kampe, following candidates: Wm. Kampe, of Frankfort as a candidate for the office of Supervisor of Frankfort township; Emil Cappel for Highway Commissioner and Albert Krusemark and Wm. Semmler as Republican candidates for precinct committeemen and C. Kohl, Democratic candidate for the same office, all in Frankfort township. Paul Maina of New Lenox was also endorsed as precinct committeeman for New Lenox township. Don C. Hall as a candidate for the nomination on the Republican ticket for Representative had been endorsed at a previous meeting and the members expressed much satisfaction in the reported progress of his campaign.

Plans were discussed for the holding of a special meeting at an early date in the interest of all candidates, who wish to be introduced to the voters of this section of Will County. Announcement of which will be made later.

Frankfort Sage Distributes Golden Rule Badges

Levi Doty of Frankfort who is now over 90 years old and who has been a faithful exponent of the Golden Rule all his life, is distributing badges to promote the application of the great truth as given by the Savior. The badges which Mr. Doty is distributing are red with the wording of the Golden Rule in gilt letters. If this principle were lived up to daily there would be no need for courts and lawyers. Mr. Doty is to be complimented for sowing the seeds of good and truth in the sunset of his long and useful life.

Pastor of Marley Church to be Ordained

The Marley Church whose pastor Rev. Sidney M. Smith will be ordained Tuesday night.

Rev. Sidney M. Smith of the Marley church will be publicly ordained in that church on next Tuesday evening, March 13th.

Dr. Perry J. Stackhouse, pastor of the First Baptist Church of Chicago, well known Baptist leader and author, will preach the ordination sermon.

Prof. Chas. F. Holman, Prof. of Pastoral Duties and Parish Administration in the divinity school of the University of Chicago will give the charge to the minister. Rev. Mr. Tunison, pastor of the First Baptist church in Elgin, which is the largest Baptist church in the Chicago Association, and who is also very prominent in work of Religious Education, will give the charge to the church.

Don C. Hall Campaigns Going Strong

Don C. Hall of Mokena, candidate for Representative in the next General Assembly of Illinois from the 41st District is making a tour of the entire District, Will and Du Page counties, and will speak in practically every town, city and village in both counties.

Wherever he appears he is greeted with enthusiasm and his record as a Legislator in Wisconsin is received with much favor.

His constructive statesmanship as evidenced by the progressive stand he took on questions and issues of importance are convincing arguments in his behalf.

The Co-operative Credit Association measure introduced by him and enacted into law is an outstanding measure. Other big factors of his legislative career were—

The measure which meant so much to Wisconsin in providing for the purifying of the waters of the state, and the preservation of fish and animal life—

The resolution memorializing Congress to pass the Newlands Irrigation and Flood Water Control Measure.—

The progressive road program and state aid appropriations for highway construction which have been instrumental in keeping Wisconsin in first place in that important department of work—

The equal suffrage enactment extending the ballot to women—

The "one day rest in seven" and the "48" hour week measures—

Pension and protective laws, Eugenic and Hygienic laws—

Humanitarian measures for the protection of the inmates of the various state institutions—

These are some of the outstanding features of his work which are attracting attention.

He was recognized as "the scholar" of the Legislative body and with him Hon. C. F. Viebahn, one of the state's most eminent educators had charge of all Educational Legislation.

His fight for economy in state expenditures of the tax payers money and for the elimination or consolidation of State Boards and Commissions were among his greatest achievements. And as a taxation expert he held an important position on taxation.

Loss of Gas Tax Blow to Bond Issue

Here is what the Chicago Tribune says about the proposed Will County bond issue:

"Will County was to have offered a road bond issue for over $2,000,000 at the April election, together with a building program of 100 or more miles. To the public it was represented that the county's share of the gas tax refund would defray interest and ultimately retire the issue, without any help from county taxation. With the gas tax defunct this appeal to the public is lost."

Don C. Hall spoke at the meeting pine hall, Joliet Friday night. Quite pine hall, Joliet Friday night. Quite a delegation from Mokena was in attendance.

To Hold Two Caucuses at Mokena, March 17

The annual Republican and People's Party caucuses of Frankfort township will be held in Mokena on Saturday afternoon, March 17th. The Republican caucus will be held in the parlors of St. John's Evangelical church from 2 to 4 o'clock.

The People's party caucus will be held at the same time at the village hall in Mokena. This year there is a full ticket in the field and a big crowd is expected to attend both caucuses. Candidates for the offices of supervisor, assessor, highway commissioner, justice of the peace and school trustee are to be nominated.

Mokena Gives Shelter to 100

Mokena has broken all local records for giving shelter to hoboes and men out of work for during the month of February 100 men were given shelter in the village jail. It is said that only a few of this number were professional hoboes. The authorities feel that by giving these homeless men shelter crime was lessened for when a man is cold and hungry he is often driven to desperation.

Dogs must Be Muzzled in Mokena

Aroused by the prevalence of an epidemic of rabies among dogs throughout various parts of the country, the Mokena authorities have opened war on stray dogs and thus far 18 stray dogs have been killed.

The village council has according to August Hentsch, made a ruling that all dogs at large must have a license and be muzzled or they will be shot. Dogs that are tied up in the yards do not have to be muzzled.

Leaves Estate To Daughters

Two daughters, Mrs. Edna Kreis, Joliet, and Mrs. Alma Cooper, St. Petersburg, Florida, are to receive the bulk of the estate of their mother, Mrs. Emma E. Bechstein, who died Feb. 17 at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet, according to the will which has been filed for probate.

The daughters are each to receive $3,000 in cash to be applied on the purchase of homes. In addition they are to receive the income from the estate until they are 42 years of age. Both daughters are in their twenties now.

The First National bank is named as trustee for the estate. A granddaughter and a grand daughter of the testatrix are to receive $300 each. A brother, John Cappel of Mattoon, is given $300 under the will also, and $100 goes to a niece, Florence Hauck of Mokena.

A Real Live Lions Club

Such was organized last Tuesday evening at the Woodmen hall, with thirty-four of Tinley Park's leading citizens and business men, with the assistance of a large delegation of the Blue Island Lions Club.

The large attendance and the enthusiasm shown, augurs well for this community, for Lions Clubs are not formed for the personal aggrandizement of a few, but for the benefit of the whole community.

Boiled down, the object of a Lions Club, is to help make their community a better place to live in and this worthy object entails all of the activities that help to make your locality a happy and prosperous place.

What is good for Tinley Park, will be what the Lions Club will help you promote and get. They are dedicated to that purpose.

So good people, do not fear the Lions roar as they only roar when they are pleased and happy.

Tinley Park's Club starts off with Henry Vogt and Fred Goebel as temporary president and secretary respectively. Their charter will be received in the near future and a gala night will be made of that occasion.

Victims Bitten By Dog, Improve

The three Tinley Park people who were bitten by a stray dog a week ago are getting along nicely. They are taken the Pasteur treatment. Dr. Ickstadt of Tinley Park is in charge of the three cases and reports his patients are doing fine.

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Sunday school 9:45 a. m. Morning worship 11 a. m. Junior C. E. 4:30 p. m. Senior Young People's Club 7 p. m.

The regular monthly church supper took place in the church basement last Wednesday. Miss Canaly of the Ladies Aid was chairman. Messrs. Alston and Covinton gave interesting talks interspersed with singing by a large group that turned out for the supper. At the Cabinet meeting the Trustees announced that arrangements had been made to pay off the balance of the indebtedness on the parsonage.

The Young People's Club enjoyed a pleasant social time at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Hannum Saturday night last. After the games the executive committee presented the revised Constitution and By-Laws which were voted and put into operation Sunday evening. Three new members were voted into the Club, bringing the membership up over 20 now.

The Junior C. E. enjoyed some splendid stereopticon pictures of work being done in foreign lands by missionaries of our church. Next Sunday Mr. Hannum will speak to the Juniors on "What it means to become a Christian".

Thru an oversight in reporting the Choir Program on February 25 the names of the Johnson "family" were omitted. Doc. and Mrs. Johnson [Mr. and Mrs. Skinner] sang a duet "Love's Old Sweet Song" assisted by their "children" Robt. Willhoit, Ethel Martin, Evelyn Gray, Constance Smeatham. Doc. Johnson's interest in the new Ford and the mischief of the children added much to the merriment.

You are all urged for once to attend the service next Sunday at which Mr. Hannum will speak plainly on his idea of an adequate program for our church.

The honorable Mayor Frank E. Harnew wishes to thank the voters of Oak Lawn for their hearty support in the election, Tuesday, March 6th in supporting the water issue.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Ryan, Mrs. Frank Jaklich and Mrs. John Salazar visited in Lemont Tuesday.

The people of Oak Lawn should certainly be complimented in their own way of thinking and not letting the propagandist mind of a destructionist tell them how to vote in our election of Tuesday in putting the water issue over two to one, for the voters showed not only confidence in the water proposition, but also confidence in the present administration.

Mr. George Welbourn, brother of Mrs. Robert Landahl was buried at the Sag Wednesday.

Mrs. Otto Cramer is quite ill. We hope to hear of her speedy recovery.

The people of Oak Lawn were shocked to read in the Daily News of March 6th of the notoriety of the raid on the place on Fairfield avenue of the home of David Higgins, a former resident of Oak Lawn.

WHEN PROMOTERS USE "CHARITY" TO DECOY TRUSTFUL CONTRIBUTORS

Investigations of Various Schemes for Defrauding Public Out of Money Disclosed by Bankers Association—Many Kinds of Fake Industrial Promotions Used as Bait.

By W. R. MOREHOUSE

Public Relations Commission, American Bankers Association

MILLIONS of dollars raised under the disguise of charity to line the pockets of promoters. Ticket sales on raffles are commonly used, and while the loss to any one person who buys a ticket is small the aggregate loss for the United States runs into millions of dollars. Usually the promoters of these schemes first make a contract with some charitable institution to conduct a campaign for funds on behalf of the institution. They are to run the campaign in the name of the institution and share the proceeds. The whole scheme is often one of deception. To those who have been led to believe that their contributions go practically 100 per cent to charity, the following case we investigated should prove illuminating.

A number of promoters recently contracted with a charitable institution to put on a campaign to raise funds by the raffle of a new automobile. So far as the public could tell from the banners used in displaying the automobile, the full amount of the sale price of the tickets went to the institution. There was nothing to convey any other impression. Apparently it was open and above board and was being conducted by men who were contributing their time gratuitously.

For several days a new automobile, mounted on a truck, was driven up and down the streets, with banners telling about the drive for funds for the charitable institution. One day the truck would go by displaying one of the popular makes of automobiles. A few days later it would parade by displaying some other popular make. Periodically the truck would pull into the curb where it would park for several hours while the promoters pleaded with passers-by to take tickets on the raffle and thereby help a deserving charitable institution to meet its bills.

Thousands "Touched"

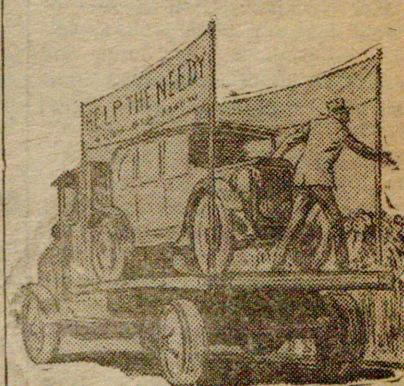

Thousands of people, touched by the appeal for help, bought tickets, the total sale running into the thousands of dollars. Contrary to the belief of the ticket buyers their contributions did not go 100 per cent to charity. Instead the charitable institution received but 26 cents on the dollar, the promoters getting 52 cents on the dollar as their net profit, or twice the amount received by charity, while the remainder of 22 cents on each dollar represented the amount charged against gross sales by the promoters as expenses.

In other words, every person who bought a 50 cent ticket for the sale of charity, contributed but 13 cents to charity and 37 cents to those promoting the scheme. Whether you give to charity or make an investment it will pay you to get the facts!

Unfortunately there is a general impression abroad that wildcat promotions are confined to oil, mining and new inventions. The truth is, many stock selling promotions are operated under the name of other industries.

False Claims

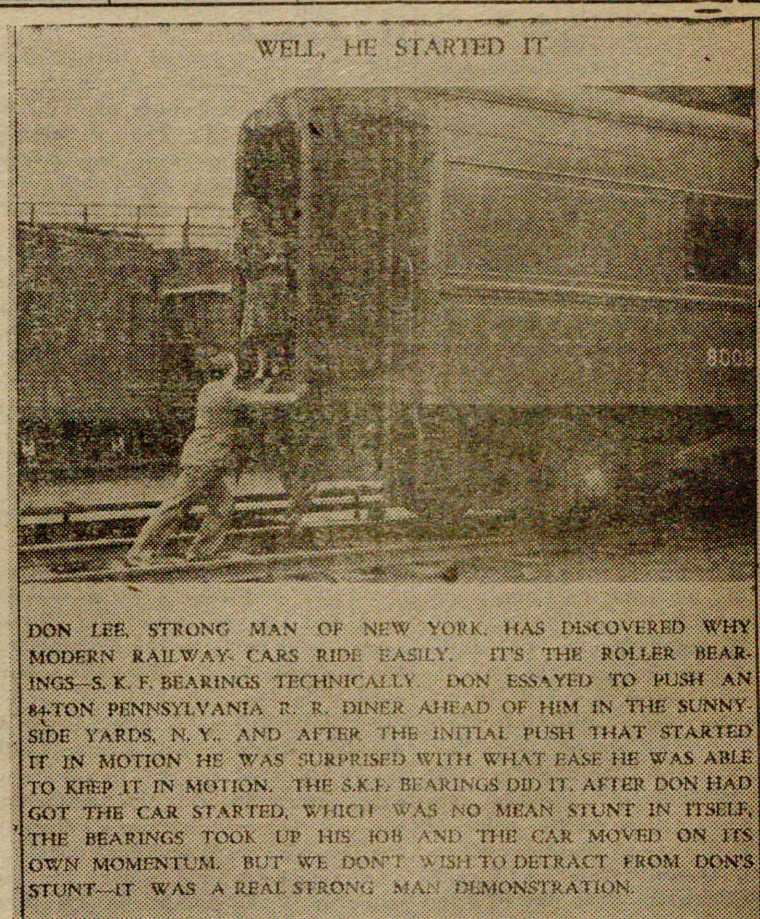

A certain group of promoters investigated offered for sale stock in a proposed woolen mill. In order to sell the stock they resorted to the use of misrepresentation and false claims. After renting space on the ground floor of an office building fronting on a busy street they began their campaign. Orally and by printed advertisements extravagant claims were made for the proposed corporation which were grossly false.

The "Charity" Drive

motors had not been connected with any mills for over twenty years and they had attempted at different times to promote mills, all of which had failed. One of the promoters represented that formerly he was president and general manager of one of the largest woolen mills in Canada. The fact was the mill referred to had gone into bankruptcy and he had been caretaker of the plant.

This story of misrepresentation can be duplicated in practically the whole industrial field, and because our industries are being exploited with intent to defraud, it behooves every investor to investigate carefully. He should consult his banker before drawing his savings out and losing them on some wildcat investment.

WELL, HE STARTED IT

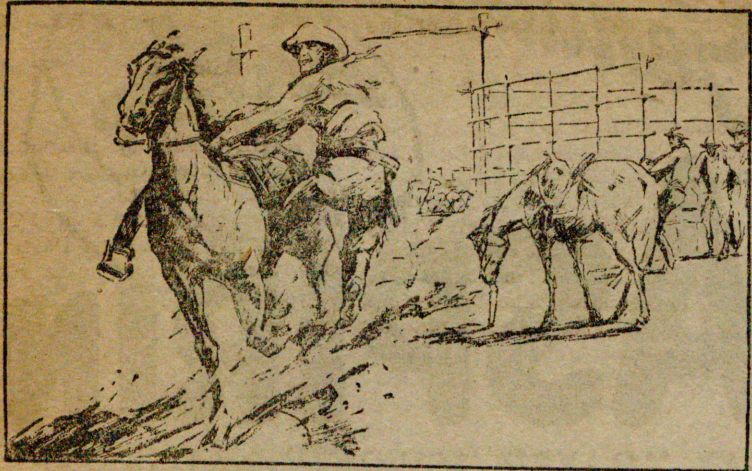

DON LEE, STRONG MAN OF NEW YORK, HAS DISCOVERED WHY MODERN RAILWAY CARS RIDE EASILY. IT'S THE ROLLER BEARINGS—S.K.F. BEARINGS TECHNICALLY. DON ESSAYED TO PUSH AN 84-TON PENNSYLVANIA R. R. DINER AHEAD OF HIM IN THE SUNNY SIDE YARDS, N.Y., AND AFTER THE INITIAL PUSH THAT STARTED IT IN MOTION HE WAS SURPRISED WITH WHAT EASE HE WAS ABLE TO KREP IT IN MOTION. THE S.K.F. BEARINGS DID IT. AFTER DON HAD GOT THE CAR STARTED, WHICH WAS NO MEAN STUNT IN ITSELF, THE BEARINGS TOOK UP HIS JOB AND THE CAR MOVED ON ITS OWN MOMENTUM. BUT WE DON'T WISH TO DETRACT FROM DON'S STUNT—IT WAS A REAL STRONG MAN DEMONSTRATION.

Canadian Industries

Pulp and paper represent the largest of the manufacturing industries in Canada. Flour and grist milling comes second, and the production of lumber and forest products stands third.

Sandalwood

Sandalwood is used in ring and handkerchief boxes, and for the sticks of fans. Its delicate fragrance has made it extremely popular among women who dislike ordinary perfumes.

"Get the message through"

In the Sixties the "pony express" carried the mail over mountain and Indian wilderness from St. Joseph, Missouri, to San Francisco. The express riders and station keepers won undying fame for getting the message through, regardless of hardship or danger.

In fact and in spirit, the Bell System is the lineal descendant of the pony express. Operators volunteer to remain at their switchboards in the face of fire, flood or other great danger. Linemen go out to repair the lines in time of accident or storm—even at the risk of their lives.

There are no instructions requiring Bell System employees to endanger their lives. It is the spirit of communication that bids them, "Get the message through."

Big Demand For Horseradish

Have you any horse radish growing around your home? If you have, cash in. There is a shortage of horse radish; a famine in horse radish. There almost isn't any. The shortage is due to the floods of the lower Mississippi. Commercial horse radish has long been grown in the low, black lands of the river bottoms.

With these horse radish farms drowned out the horse radish eaters are all out of luck. Their tongues are beginning to hang out—for horse radish. And the manufacturers of horse radish can't get the raw materials. If you have a forgotten and neglected patch of horse radish now is the time to cash in. Number 1 horse radish is worth 25 cents a pound.

A manufacturer has sounded the S. O. S. signal through the Illinois Chamber of Commerce. If you have any horse radish, and want to cash it in, write the State Chamber, 35 E. Wacker Drive, Chicago. Your name will be forwarded to the manufacturer. All together now, save the horse radish eaters.

Scots Early Builders

The first concrete pavement known was built in 1865 in Inverness, Scotland. The oldest one in America is in Bellefontaine, Ohio. It was built in 1892, and is still in use.

Credit Not Johnson's

When Doctor Johnson's "Rambler" was first published, the sale was decidedly disappointing. In fact the only paper, curious as it may seem in the light of his reputation today, which might be said to have been popular, was No. 97—the only one Doctor Johnson did not write. This paper, says the Market for Exchange, was said to have been written by Samuel Richardson.

Sizes of Continents

Europe forms only about one-fourteenth of the land surface of the globe. Asia extends over nearly one-third of the land surface of the globe. Africa has about three times the area of Europe. North America is a little less than twice the size of Europe; and South America is a little more than 1 1/2 times the size of Europe.

Paine's Claim to Fame

Thomas Paine was born in 1737 and died in 1809. Of his work called "Common Sense" it is said that it was "the first open assertion of American independence, and was probably the most powerful pamphlet that ever influenced a nation's history." In this sense Thomas Paine may be said to have influenced the preparation and adoption of the Declaration of Independence.

Treasurer, 1st Vice and 2nd Vice Presidents will be elected at their next meeting. It was voted and passed to affiliate with the International Lions Association with headquarters in Chicago. A representative of this body was a speaker, also 10 members of Blue Island Lions were present each giving short interesting talks. Charter night will be celebrated

WLS Has Fur Expert

Service to those who kill or trap animals whose fur is valuable, he it one animal or one hundred, is given by WLS, the Sears Roebuck Station, through Johnny Muskrat. Twice each week, Tuesdays and Fridays at 6:15, Johnny Muskrat tells all that is new in the world of trapping and furs and has prepared a booklet on trapping and care of furs. Johnny's other name is Frank Spencer. He is a westerner, having come to Chicago from Seattle. Before he came he took time to graduate from the University of Washington. Through Johnny Muskrat's service, farmers are able to market their furs readily and do not have to save them up to get a large supply. This service, Johnny has found, is much appreciated.

Indians' Peace Pipe

The peace pipe of the North American Indians was a tobacco-pipe with a stem of reed or painted wood about two feet and a half long, decorated with feathers, with a large bowl, usually of red soapstone. After a treaty was signed, the Indians filled the calumet, or peace pipe, with the best tobacco, and presented it to the representatives of the party with whom they entered into alliance, the Indians themselves smoking out of it afterward.—Exchange.

"Oh, you monster—the poor dear trusting heart," she muttered, all in the same breath.

Auntalmiry, flushed and radiant with excitement, was the first to arrive for the party. She was joyously pleased at the unusual tenderness of Alice Andover's greeting, and took her all about the room to point out to her, with shy pride, how cleverly she had managed things, explaining all the little economies she had used, the ruses to which she had resorted, in her desire to make least money go farthest. Alice was sympathetic, solicitous, warmly approving, but kept always one sharp and terrified eye upon Gay, both of them in a par of fear lest the creature upstairs regain his sober senses and spoil the party for which Auntalmiry had worked so hard.

At Gay's direction, Auntalmiry took up her position by the window, with Alice Andover and Gay on either side, and pressed the electric button which set the solitary pine a-sparkle with colored lights from top to bottom, flashing a brilliant holiday greeting all over that end of the island.

"It is the last invitation," she cried, and her thin little voice quavered with excitement. "Come to my party, come to my Christmas party! Everybody can see it. It will guide them up the hill. How the children will laugh! It is very nice, Gay."

The island trooped to the party in a body, a long stream pouring up the hill through the snow, so that all in a moment it seemed the Lone Pine was a-surge and a-throb with it. There was much laughter, much shrill squealing, the piercing staccato of children's voices, the high nervous laughter of young girls, and deeper older voices, calling loud and cheery greeting.

"If this babel doesn't wake him up, he might as well be dead," whispered Alice Andover.

"I'll go and have a look," said Gay. "It is enough to bring the trees to life."

Gay listened outside the bedroom door a moment, hoping to hear the muffled heavy breathing that presaged the sleep of their unwelcome guest. But with the din from below she could hear nothing, so she opened the door quickly and stepped in. The room was wrapped in silence, utter and heavy, and in the darkness she could not distinguish the shadow by the window-seat that was Buddy Bridges. She pressed the button that flooded the room with light and showed in a flash its emptiness. The rugs lay in a rumpled heap upon the floor, but Buddy Bridges was not there.

The window was open. Gay ran over and looked out, but in the shadow of rocks and trees by the house she could distinguish nothing. Her eyes swam giddily.

"Such—a Christmas," she stammered. Already with that vividly creative mind of hers she could see him lying on the rocks, a bleeding mangled shape, Auntalmiry's son. Suddenly she was afraid to be alone, and ran downstairs. Alice Andover awaited her coming at the foot of the steps.

She read fear in Gay's eyes.

"What now, good heavens, what now?"

"He is gone. He is not here."

"Gone! Gone where? Gone how?"

"Come: Let's look." In the joyous confusion that reigned about the Christmas tree, with Santa Claus noisily distributing the pretty gifts, with the burble of his bells, the laughing voices, the crackle of tissue paper, and the treble of children's voices over all, they went out unnoticed. And with an electric flashlight, looked beneath the window for the crushed and bleeding—

Yes, he had certainly dropped down into the bank of snow. There were many signs of tramping, footprints, but the white snow bore no stains of red. And Buddy was not there. The outraged divinity whose patience still is infinite had guarded Auntalmiry's boy that night.

So they went back, with what nonchalance they could muster, and joined the merriment within. But Gay was sick at heart. Everybody had come to the party, the Captain was there, the two ministers were there, even Buddy Bridges had come home. But Rand came not.

"Well, well," boomed Santa Claus, "well, well! Here's another present for little old Auntalmiry! Auntalmiry!"

Santa Claus, powerful young giant that he was, caught her up bodily into his arms, so that she was quite crushed in the shaggy fur of his big coat.

"Auntalmiry, Auntalmiry!" chorused the children gaily.

And then, on the wave of that loving joyous call, the door opened, and he stood there, soft but crushed low on his forehead over the big dark eyes, collar turned up about his chin—tall, thin, and weak, very pale, Buddy Bridges.

Santa Claus, with little Auntalmiry still in his arms, turned as the others did, to look at this one who came so unceremoniously into the party, his face alone unsmiling, set and grim.

He crossed without a word into the center of the room, walked swaggeringly, perhaps to hide the fact that he could not stand erect without swaying weakly, and stood before Santa Claus, with Auntalmiry in his arms. It was she who moved first, moved vaguely, slipping to the floor, and then, not seeming to walk, seeming to float rather, she was beside him, her eyes riveted to his eyes, haggard and dark-lined, and his fingers crept softly up his coat toward his face, touching the curve of his chin uncertainly, inquiringly, as though it were by feeling she would be convinced.

"Almiry, come away," broke in Alice Andover harshly, but it was pity that hardened her voice. "Come away. He's drunk."

"It's Buddy," Auntalmiry said faintly. "It's Buddy. It is Buddy."

"Come away, I tell you; he's drunk."

Then suddenly Buddy Bridges laughed. "Drunk," he shouted weakly but with derision in his voice. "Oh, it's you, Alice Andover, up to your old tricks! Drunk! So that's what you thought. Well, I thought you were crazy, the pair of you, stuffing me up with cognac, locking me in—I'm not drunk, mom, I'm sick. They couldn't tell the difference."

Every eye in the bright, disordered, crowded room was intent upon Buddy Bridges, who held his mother in his arms, and laughed with her, wept with her, and talked to her in a fond weak voice. "Sick as a dog. In the hospital—weeks. Weak as the dickens. I was in the hospital when they told me you were here. I got out of bed—knocked two internes down—sick as I was. Came on here—clear from California, mom. Twice I fainted away, and when I came to, they had me off the train and in hospital again. But as soon as I got my wind, I beat it again. Came on. Drunk! Isn't that like her, mom? I'd know in a minute it was Alice Andover! You haven't changed much, mom—a little. How his eyes caressed her! "Twenty-five years, mom. Not a word from you in twenty-five years. I wouldn't have believed it, mom. It was—not—just—like you. Was it because they sent me to the pen, mom?"

"The—pen, Buddy? The pen?"

"Oh, hush, you fool," begged Alice Andover.

"In Jersey. Twenty-five years—"

"Buddy, you don't mean the penitentiary—Buddy—"

"Mom, didn't you know it? Didn't you ever know it?"

"Buddy—"

"Mom, you've just forgot. You knew it. You must have known it. It was in the papers—Is—is she all right?" he asked falteringly of all the room. "You must have known it."

Alice Andover was tall and fine in her dignity. "Yes, Buddy Bridges, we knew it. We all knew it. But nobody told her. Almiry never knew to this day—"

"Nobody told her—"

Alice Andover's dignity was simply killing. "On our island, Mr. Bridges," she said gently, "we tell one another no news unless it's good news. There was nobody here low-down enough to tell Auntalmiry that her son had gone to jail."

"Buddy—" Auntalmiry's voice was pleading.

"Aw, mom, it wasn't much. A roughhouse, a row over a game. You know I was always quick in a scrap. It wasn't much. But a man was hurt. So they sent me up for it. But, mom, since then, everything fine and dandy. No nonsense since. Got a fine woman, got three nice kids, made a lot of money—Great, mom." And then, suddenly, mercurial man as he had been a mercurial boy, he glowered, glowered with sudden anger around the room. "See here," he demanded sharply, "who sent me that paper—marked Portland paper—that told me mom was dead? Twenty-five years ago! One of you sent me a paper—that lied."

U. S. Grant Won Bride While Fording River

Ulysses S. Grant selected an odd time to propose marriage to Julia Dent. Lieutenant Grant from West Point had met Julia while on a visit to the home of his chum in St. Louis. He fell in love with her and decided to return to pursue his attentions, relates Edna M. Colman in "White House Gossip."

Their betrothal occurred while they were fording the Gravois river. They were in a light rig, the young man driving. The waters were swollen and the current so swift from the recent heavy rains that they were in grave danger. The manner of her clinging to him in her fear of the water inspired him with the courage to pro-

Telephonic Impasse

A telephone operator was at one end of the wire and a little girl, who had answered her ring, at the other. The operator, obeying one of the rules laid down by the company, was trying to get the child to call an older person. She began, according to the rule, by asking:

"Is your mama there?"

"No."

"Is your sister there?"

"No. There's no one here but grandma and me and the cat. Grandma can't bear and the cat can't talk."

The silence throbbed. Everybody looked at Alice Andover. She was the administrator, and this was a terrible charge he brought.

Alice Andover did not flinch. She turned directly on the Captain.

"John Christian Wallace, do you mean to tell me you dared to take it upon yourself—without consulting me—the natural administrator—"

The Captain removed his pipe and ambled amiably into the arena, a gentle, dignified little old figure. He put an affectionate hand on Buddy's arm. His voice was wavering with age and with excitement, but he was not daunted.

"Buddy, I say to myself, 'Jailbird or no jailbird, he's Auntalmiry's son. He's got a right to know she's gone.' We said plenty of hard things against you, times enough, but nobody ever said that Buddy Bridges didn't love his mom. 'No,' says I, 'he's got a right to know it.' So I marked the paper, and sent it right off to you, Buddy, in jail or what-not, for I don't hold to them as says—"

"But, Gramp," he interrupted, for everybody called the Captain Gramp, "Gramp, she was not dead! She was not dead!"

"No, but we thought she was. It said in the paper she was. We didn't know till next day, or day after, that she pulled through after all. 'No,' says I, 'he's her son,' and as soon as I read in the paper she was dead, I marked it and mailed it, and—"

"But, Gramp, my God, when you found out—that she wasn't dead—"

Here in the Cove She Was at the Mercy of Whoever Might Come Upon Her.

that she had pulled through— Why, in God's name, didn't you let me know?"

The Captain was crestfallen, taken aback. But he rallied, slowly. "What say?" he asked feebly, hand to his ear.

"Why didn't you send me word—let me know—when you found out that it was a mistake, and she had not died? I never knew. When I got out I headed west and never came back. Never wanted to come back if mom was gone. Why didn't you let me know?"

"God bless my soul," ejaculated the Captain feebly. "Didn't you know she wasn't dead? Just think of that now. His own mother not dead, and he didn't even know it. Dear, dear, Buddy, I never thought of it from that day to this. I supposed of course a boy would know it if his own mother wasn't dead."

When the last tired but happy voice had sent its final "Merry Christmas" ringing back across the snow, when Auntalmiry, with Buddy's weak arm about her, had disappeared beyond the arc of light that underlined the solitary pine, Gay turned back into the bright disordered rooms and closed the door slowly. She was very sad. The brightness of the room in all its gay confusion depressed her, and she stood, a tired dejected figure in the midst of it, and pressed her burning face into her cold clasped hands. Tears came to her eyes. A sob swelled in her throat. She wept noiselessly. What was the success of all the noisy merry party to her, when Rand had not come, and she knew not where he was?

In her heart she knew that Rand had not remained away of his own volition, that something had kept him against his will. He had pledged her to solemn secrecy in regard to his movements, but his prolonged absence without word or reassurance terrified her greatly. She sank down into the window-seat and looked out. The tall, gayly lighted pine was hateful, garish to her saddened eyes. Impatiently she pressed the button, and the hillslope was plunged into darkness.

"It—it's that d-d old clubhouse," she said bitterly. "I have a big notion to—to burn it down."

With the passionate words came sudden determination. She could not bear this anxiety, she must know the worst, however bad it be. She would slip into the forest, and reconnoiter. Rand had sternly ordered her to keep entirely out of the woods and away from the Little club, but Gay, in an emergency like this, and goaded by her fears for him, was not one to be balked by obedience. If she found the gang in the Little club, she would call the police, immediately, have the place raided, and demand Rand of them. In her thoughts, vividly, she saw the slim worn face, the shapely strong hands of the one who had come to her on the waves in the Little cove. Almost she saw Rand's face, like that, with the merry eyes closed, the mocking lips set hard, swept by salt water.

"Oh, no," she cried faintly. Then she sprang to her feet, and pounded hotly up the stairs. She was feverish with excitement now, her face flaming, her lips parched, her eyes tingling hot. But her slender, strong hands were like ice.

"If they catch me, I do not care," she told herself hotly. "I've got to find him." She could not bear that recurring, evanescent vision of Rand's face on the winter sea.

The cold fingers tore her party dress from her, pulled on heavy silk and woolen undergarments, her thickest woolen stockings, stout boots. She donned her warmest blouse beneath the fawn-colored suede wind-breaker, and bloomers beneath her heaviest knickers. The leather cap she pulled down to her ears, caught up her leather fur-lined gloves, and then her dark-colored slicker enveloped all.

"If they see me, they'll think I'm a man," she said sturdily to her stout reflection in the glass. "With this cap, this slicker, these boots."

Schooled by the experience of six months on the island, Gay slipped a flashlight into one pocket, and her pistol in the other. She was trembling all over.

"But I'm not afraid," she said firmly. She pressed the last electric button, and the cottage merged into the darkness that covered all the coast. She opened the door gingerly an inch at a time, listening intently. The island was asleep in the darkness. There was no moon; the stars, rare and cold, were pin-points of ice.

She did not hesitate. She quite confidently believed that she would rather die than endure the suspense of uncertainty. Not daring to use her flash, she made her way through the snow slowly, from tree to tree, toward the Little club, stumbling often, running into unsuspected pines, falling over hidden shrubs. But she went on. When she came at last to the row of trees that circled the clubhouse, she stood for a long moment, as Rand had taught her, flattened against the bark, listening.

Neither sound nor sigh from within. "Sealed," she thought, "hermetically sealed."

She crept cautiously around the corner, feeling her way inch by inch until she reached the spot where Rand had taken out the rocks to get under the piazza. It had seemed simple enough as she had watched him, and Gay felt she could easily do the same thing, and thus obtain a view of the interior, perhaps—confirmation, or denial, of her fears. But for all the strength of her young arms, for all the power of her stubborn will, she could not so much as stir the smallest of the rocks, which were now deeply wedged into the frozen soil, packed solidly, presenting a firm and immovable barricade to entrance under the piazza.

Thus balked, she stopped a moment to consider. One thing was absolute, she would not go home. But she was puzzled as to wise procedure.

Tempted for a moment to fire her pistol into the air, hoping that fear of a raid would draw the gang from the shelter of the clubhouse, second thought convinced her it would be sheer foolhardiness. At last she decided to go down into the cove, to examine the great door and look for a light beneath the window curtains.

Getting into the cove itself was very difficult, for the crevices among the rocks were covered with snow, and she was obliged to claw her way along, hand over hand, sounding with her feet for standing ground. Down, down, she slid, from rock to rock, from snowy crevice into snowy crevice, kicking, holding on with both hands like grim death, down, lower and lower, until she attained the level beach of the cove. She moved warily now, feeling the great helplessness of her position. In the woods she could at least run for cover. Here in the cove she was at the mercy of whoever might come upon her. Softly, keeping in the shadow of the rocky cliffs, she crept to the clubhouse door.

She ran her hand over the locks carefully, and then softly turned the knob. Well oiled, silently it moved beneath her hand. The door to the Little club was open.

Touched Trapper's Heart
A trapper at Orange, Texas, placed a trap in what he thought was a mink trail, but one morning he found a big muskrat fastened in it. After the animal had been killed, the trapper observed a nest which had been prepared by the mother rat while fast in the trap, as she had three feet free. Within the nest was a new-born litter of rats. "I'd give the price of a good many furs if I had seen the young muskrats before I killed their mother for her hide," said the trapper.

The 2-cent gasoline tax law, under which more than $6,000,000 has been collected, has been relegated to the scrap heap. The Supreme court of Illinois held the law invalid and branded the much discussed measure as "an unintelligible piece of legislation."

The decision prepared by Justice Floyd E. Thompson, of Rock Island, reverses a decision of the Circuit court of Kane county, where the law was held valid. The finding, attorneys declare, make it impossible for the state to credit counties proportionate share for road purposes. Provisions of the act were declared by the Supreme court to be in violation of the federal Constitution.

The money collected will remain in the general fund in the state treasury until appropriated for a specific purpose by the general assembly. Companies which have paid the tax under protest may have recourse before the state court of claims, but attorneys say there is no possibility of a refund to car owners who have paid the tax since last August. Any refunds would probably go to gasoline distributors, as the tax provided for in the law was indirect so far as motorists were concerned.

The law was branded as discriminatory against motorists because the gas tax did not apply to users of gasoline for other purposes; because it differentiated in the treatment of gasoline and kerosene, both fuels, and because it did not affect electrically propelled vehicles.

The passage of the 2-cent gasoline tax at the last session of the general assembly was one of the thrillers which came some time before adjournment. The first bill went down to defeat but on the next legislative day was revived and passed after a terrific fight. It was signed by the governor and became effective August 1, last.

An opinion given by Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom to Director Roy Ide of the state department of public welfare indicates that the state parole board has been exceeding its authority on the discharge of prisoners.

This opinion answered questions concerning the authority of the parole board, asked by Elmer J. Green, warden at Illinois state penitentiary. The only means, the attorney general answered, by which a prisoner may be released are: Parole, transfer or discharge before parole.

"It is my opinion," Mr. Carlstrom said, "that the parole board cannot order the release or discharge of a prisoner except under these conditions, and if the board releases a prisoner otherwise, it is exceeding its statutory authority."

"It further was the evident intention of the legislature to require the warden of the penitentiary to keep a correct record of all prisoners received or discharged or released from his institution. When the parole board orders a prisoner released or discharged, the warden's records should show all the orders contained therein, which are relative or pertinent thereto."

Centralia was chosen as the place for holding the next annual meeting of the Illinois Farmers' Institute at the annual meeting of the officers and directors held in the capital city a few days ago. The meeting will be held in February, 1929.

Officers re-elected were: President, W. G. Curtis, Stockton; vice president, William Webb, Plainfield; secretary, H. E. Young, Springfield; auditor-treasurer, Clayton C. Pickett, Chicago. Ex-officio members of the board of directors are as follows: Superintendent of public instruction, F. G. Blair, Springfield; dean of the college of agriculture, Herbert W. Mumford, Urbana; director state department of agriculture, S. J. Standard, Springfield; president State Horticultural society, W. R. Soverhill, Tiskilwa; president State Dairyman's association, W. S. O'Hair, Paris.

Road building in Illinois will virtually cease in three years if no tax is levied on gasoline. Chief Highway Engineer Frank T. Sheets told University of Illinois short course engineers a few days ago in commenting on the Supreme court's action in holding the present gas tax law unconstitutional.

Road work proposed in many counties will be held up and programs which would have been completed in 1932 will not be completed until 1940 or later as the result of no gasoline tax, he said. He forecast that another law to collect a gasoline tax would be worked out and enacted, overcoming the constitutional objections found by the high court in the present bill.

Edmund M. Allen, warden of Joliet penitentiary and noted exponent of the honor system among convicts, died suddenly a few days ago of pneumonia at the Ravenswood hospital in Chicago. He was fifty-three years old.

Mr. Allen resigned his post as warden in 1925 when his wife was found slain by a product of the honor system she had helped her husband build up. For the past few years he had been a business promoter in Chicago. Before his term as warden he was mayor of Joliet.

Extolling the advantage derived from a sun-tanned skin but denouncing as worthless many of the devices alleged to produce the health-giving rays, Dr. Isaac D. Rawlings, state health director, declared in a statement issued a few days ago that there is no substitute equivalent to the smile of Old Sol himself and that the health promoting value of sunshine increased noticeably in this latitude on March 1.

Necessary to good nutrition as well as for the prevention of such diseases as rickets, the volume of the ultra-violet rays from the sun has been at its lowest ebb since last December, but will increase fully eight-fold before the end of May. The sharpest advance occurred about March 1. This very probably accounts for much of the physical and mental disturbances at this time of the year manifested by the greatest seasonal amount of illness and the largest number of suicides.

"Obstructed by smoke, dust, clouds and glass the shortest rays of the sun, ordinarily called ultra-violet because of the color produced in the spectrum, and nevertheless most vital to human health and their absence causes grave nutritional disturbances that manifest themselves in bow legs, sore teeth, enlarged head growth, lack of muscle tone," Doctor Rawlings said. "Always far less abundant than the ordinary light and heat producing rays, the sun's winter trip to the South reduces the volume of the rare ultra-violet to a very minimum in this latitude during December, January and February."

In an opinion announced a few days ago, Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom holds that the removal of a precinct committeeman from the district in which he was elected does not constitute a vacancy, but whether such a vacancy exists is a party question.

The ruling is the first to be given since the primary act of 1927 was declared valid by the Supreme court.

Attackers of the act have consistently held that failure to provide means for filling vacancies left by the death or removal of a precinct committeeman was fatal to the act's constitutionality. The court held that appointment of committeemen to fill vacancies was a power inherent in the party county committee.

Courts of Illinois, Carlstrom said in his opinion, made at the request of the state's attorney of Ford county, have not passed upon the matter of when a vacancy exists. A Virginia court, however, determined a similar question, holding in effect that the county central committee had jurisdiction over the party organization.

Under this ruling, Carlstrom held, the committee should establish, in conformity with its own rules and precedents, whether or not such a vacancy exists.

The Illinois Medical Practice Act, standing target for constitutional lawyers, has survived in the Supreme court two recent attacks on its validity. In the case of Dr. Blaine L. Ramsay, who sought an injunction to prevent the professional committee from hearing and publishing charges against him, the court declared Ramsay entitled to relief, which had been denied by the Superior court of Cook county. It did not, however, invalidate the act, the constitutionality of which had been questioned in the proceedings.

In the case of John J. McGinley, who was fined in Rock Island for practicing without a license, the court reaffirmed the judgment of the lower court. Justice Duncan filed a brief dissent: "I do not agree that the medical practice act is valid," he said. "In my opinion, the act is void for unjust discrimination."

It has been the contention of chiropractors that the act under which they are licensed is unjust because their examination is by medical doctors, instead of by chiropractors.

Goy. Len Small has authorized a reduction of 10 per cent in the price of ground limestone to be supplied to the farmers of the state by the Southern Illinois penitentiary. The new price will continue in effect up until April 1. For the past several years farmers of southern Illinois have used a large amount of ground limestone in restoring the fertility of their farms. There is opportunity to use a still greater amount so the governor has ordered a reduction of the price to 90 cents a ton, f. o. b. Menard. Request is made that orders will be placed with their local farm advisor.

Hon. Henry Rathbone, congressman-at-large from Illinois, has introduced a bill providing for an appropriation to build a highway between Mattoon, Coles county, Illinois, to Toledo, Cumberland county, Illinois, as a Lincoln memorial. This road will pass the home of Thomas Lincoln, father of President Lincoln. Mr. Lincoln resided at New Salem while his father lived at two places in Coles county.

Unless appeal is taken to the Supreme court, Joseph Bela, under sentence in Vermillion county, will be the first person electrocuted in Illinois under the change in law in the manner of inflicting the death penalty. Bela is under sentence to be electrocuted on April 13.

Under the law changing the method of inflicting the death penalty from hanging to electrocution, Bela will be transferred to the southern Illinois penitentiary at Chester for electrocution. Three electric chairs are provided for in the state.

UNUSUAL GOOD THINGS

Where green peppers are reasonable in price at this time of year the following soup may be often served:

Green Pepper Soup.—Wash six green peppers and remove the stems and seeds, as well as the white fiber. Cut the peppers into small pieces and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Drain, reserving two cupfuls of the pepper liquor. Put the peppers through a sieve and add to the pepper stock. Melt five tablespoonfuls of butter in a saucepan, add five tablespoonfuls of flour and cook until well blended. Add the puree with three cupfuls of milk, two tea spoonfuls of salt and a few dashes of cayenne. Sprinkle with paprika and serve.

Illinois Beefsteak.—Select a thick, large sirloin or porterhouse steak—one that is sure to be tender. Heat a large frying pan very hot, grease very lightly with a bit of the suet from the steak and pan-broil the steak until nearly done, then spread it with butter, salt and enough mixed mustard to add pliancy and complete the cooking, turning once more. Place a generous lump of butter on a hot platter to melt, turn the steak onto it and cover thickly with chopped pickled walnuts. Pour into the frying pan a cupful of fresh coffee infusion, boil up once and pour round the steak. Serve at once.

Oxtail Soup.—This is a very popular cold-weather soup. To make two quart of soup, take one oxtail and separate it into pieces. Cook these in a little suet until nicely brown, add two tablespoonfuls of flour, then very gradually two quarts of brown stock; bring to the boiling point, then simmer, adding a half cupful of celery, a sprig of chopped parsley, a small onion and one-half cupful of carrots and turnips cut into dice. Just before serving add a teaspoonful of Worcestershire sauce. More liquid may be needed; if so add boiling water.

White Stock.—Take a three-pound shin of veal, one cupful each of chopped celery and onion, two sprigs of parsley, a small bit of bay leaf, three teaspoonfuls of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of white pepper and three quarts of cold water. Remove all the meat from the bone and cut it into small pieces; place half the meat with the bones in cold water and let stand for half an hour. In the meantime brown the rest of the meat in butter, until a rich color. This adds both color and flavor to the stock. Keep merely at the simmering point for three hours, if the heat is kept very low. Strain and set away to cool. When cold remove the grease. The vegetables are added as the meat is put on in the cold water.

Soups and Other Dishes.
Soup is one of the most popular of all our dishes. It may be nourishing and a full meal, or stimulating and taken as the beginning to a hearty meal.

Meats such as roasts, steaks, chops and boiling pieces must be subjected at the beginning of their preparation to an intense heat which will sear the entire surface, so that every bit of juice and nutriment may be retained inside. When making soup the opposite effect is desired. The juices and extractives must be drawn out to flavor the soup. No temperature at boiling should ever be reached, but a slow simmering, dropping the meat finely divided into cold water and heating it slowly.

Brown stock is prepared from beef bones and vegetables of rich color. White stock is prepared from veal, veal bones and such vegetables as celery and onions with parsley as flavor.

The bones should be cracked so that every bit of marrow and bone flavor reaches the broth. Each pound of meat and bone needs a quart of water and each quart of soup a teaspoonful of salt with a heaping tablespoonful of whatever vegetable is used for flavor. A rich stock kept from the day before, carefully skimmed of fat, may be diluted with any vegetable liquor at hand, to give variety and flavor. The liquor from canned vegetables should never be thrown away, as it is rich in flavor as well as vitamins. Tomato juice is especially valuable in all dishes where it may be used.

Soup stock, besides being a good dish for the beginning of a meal, is a good base for any number of gravies and vegetable soups. A can of commercial soup may, with some home-made soup stock, make a most satisfying soup.

Brown stock is prepared just as above, using beef instead of veal and such vegetables as carrot and turnip together with onion and celery.

Lesson for March 11

JESUS FEEDS THE MULTITUDE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:31-44.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the bread of life; he that cometh to Me shall never hunger, and he that believeth on Me shall never thirst.

PRIMARY TOPIC—An Unusual Meal.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Hungry Crowd.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Jesus Meeting Every-Day Needs.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Jesus' Compassion for Human Need.

I. Jesus' Invitation to the Weary Disciples (vv. 31, 32).

The apostles had just returned from an evangelistic tour in Galilee with a report of what they had done and taught. Their ministry occasioned no little stir. Besides, Jesus Himself continued to preach. As a result of their combined ministry, the commotion was so great that there was no opportunity for resting or eating. In such a time of need Jesus invited His disciples to retire from the crowd and rest. In order to do this they departed privately by ship for a desert place. Periods of withdrawal from the crowd in fellowship with the Lord are necessary after evangelistic campaigns. They serve a double purpose.

1. To get the eyes of the ministers off themselves and their work.

2. To prevent despondency for their failures.

II. Jesus Teaching the Ignorant Multitude (vv. 33, 34).

1. Thronged by the people (v. 33).

The wonderful words and works of the Lord and His disciples brought the multitudes to them. To escape the throng they took their departure for a desert place (v. 32). Seeing the Lord and His disciples depart, the people from the surrounding cities anticipated their landing place, and, proceeding thither, welcomed the ship upon its arrival.

2. The Lord moved with compassion (v. 34).

Instead of becoming irritated by the intrusion of the crowd His heart was moved with pity. His personal interests were forgotten as the needs of the shepherdless sheep pressed upon His notice, therefore He began to teach them many things. Jesus is now the same compassionate Savior, touched with the feelings of our infirmities (Heb. 4:15).

III. Jesus Feeding the Hungry Multitude (vv. 35-44).

1. Conference with the disciples (vv. 35-38).

(1) The disciples request that the multitude be sent to the surrounding villages to buy bread (v. 36). According to Matthew, Christ made the proposition that the multitude be fed (Matt. 14:16). (2) Jesus commands them to feed the multitude (v. 37). (3) The disciples' perplexity (v. 37). They began to calculate as to the amount of provisions required. They asked the Lord whether they should go and buy two hundred pennyworth of bread. Their perplexity was due to the fact that they were depending upon their own resources instead of Christ. To be face to face with the humanly impossible has a threefold benefit. (a) It makes us realize our dependence upon Christ; (b) Drives us to Him for help in our need; (c) Leads us to give Him the glory for the results. Though our ability to teach, preach or to give, be meager, when coupled with the Lord's ability, it is equal to any demand.

2. Jesus' method in feeding the multitudes (vv. 39-44).

(1) The Lord's part. This was to issue instructions as to the method of procedure and to create the provision. Though they had but five loaves and two fishes He so increased them that the need of the hungry multitude was met.

(2) The disciples' part. They were to have the people sit down in companies so as to facilitate distribution. They then took that which the Master had blessed and distributed it to the people. The disciples' responsibility was not for the creation of the provision, but for its distribution to the people. (3) The people's part. Their part was not to create, nor distribute, but obediently to sit down and partake of the provision. Even after the bread had been blessed by the Lord and distributed by the disciples, they would have famished with hunger had they not partaken of the food. Unless the people receive Jesus Christ and the salvation which He has provided they shall eternally starve. The Lord has done His part. The disciples are under solemn obligation to do their part and the final responsibility rests upon the people.

Obedience

Obedience is the secret. Not slavish obedience, but sympathetic, loving, eager obedience. May the law of holiness be to me welcome as the light, sweet as the flowers, more to be desired than much fine gold!—W. L. Watkinson.

A Voice That Wants to Reach Every Mother

Flint, Mich.—"I am the mother of eight children and during each of my expectant periods I took Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it kept my nerves in good condition, kept me so well and strong that I was always able to do all my own work—never suffered like so many do. While the 'Favorite Prescription' strengthens and keeps the prospective mother well, it is also helping to make the child healthy and strong. I would not think of going thru the ordeal of motherhood without taking the 'Prescription'."—Mrs. Charles Gussell, 1630 St. John St.

Lighthouse Illumination

Most of the American lighthouses guarding ships against coastal rocks have now run the complete gamut of lighting in the last 200 years. They began with fish oil and then proceeded through sperm oil, rapeseed or colza candescent mantles and finally electricity upon which main dependence is put nowadays.
